

Hot Off the Press

Monday January 12, 2009

Know something about pre-press? Then the industry needs you...

The Canadian Printing Industries Sector Council (CPISC) provides a national forum for collaboration on human resource and workforce development issues within the printing and graphic communications industry.

CPISC has undertaken to develop national skill standards for the industry. Clear skill standards define what an employee should know and be able to do. They play a key role in improving workforce development.

We need your help in validating what we have done.

The draft Pre-press Skill Standards are now posted online. We ask that you review the standards and provide any feedback you may have.

Thank you for your participation!

Reprinted due to popular demand

The CPISC Press Skill Standards have been in high demand from employers and educators. Developed by the industry for the industry, the standards set out the core skills an employee working in the press area should have. To find out more about these and future Skill Standards, click here.
